The title of the new number 11 is not as weak as it sounds since it is the English translation of the song which won the Eurovision Song Contest. The singer is a girl, the song comes from Monaco and is uptempo for a change.

The Ojays record is a Tamla Mo'town re-release. Fairly typical.

'My Brother Jake' is a big change from the previous heavy material eetkaxxhave released. This is a jogging sort of record.

The last new entry comes from McGuiness Flint, written by group member Bernie Gallacher(from krxm Largs in SCOTLAND) and is another joggy number.

Its a toss up whether Ardine Taylor or East of Eden will be the next no.1 but if the latter it will be the first time a country jig has reached the top.

BooBoo hit top form this morning and is a potential father to Michelle's pups, sharing this honoured position with Kunute. Well have to wait and see who the offspring resemble but luckilly both are suitable daddies.

Arkid's back on eye drops 3 times daily after his stitches came out of their own accord.

The pups are very photogenic now but remember they'll soon be wanting to try out their new teeth. Be Warned. Anything left lurking is fair game to them.

When are the dogs going down the tunnel? As soon as the dog tunnel is finished, kennels shaft-tops, ladders and all, but definately before the end of May

And now a few more facts in reply to this weeks teaser.

Assuming that for a team to be out for 50 days, the initial load would be 1550 lb, and similarly 1900 lb for an Elsan.

- *. Max range for a team is 1000 ml, but for an Elsan not much more than 800 ml; ie. if every day is a travelling day.
- 2. Both mileages were calculated assuming good murfaces. BUT surfaces are a very limiting factor for Elsans, far more so than with dogs.
- 3. You can if pressed eat half the team and still return unruffled. Try eating half the Elsan enginge and doing the same.

For the sheer pleasure, reliability, and cleanliness which would you prefer. If there's still a doubt in your mind remember you could still knock off the South Pole with small vehicles.

DILLONS COLUMN

Thanks for the many suggestions regarding last weeks question.

I have never been so embarrassed in all my life to think we do it that way. I mean, its animal. In fact if you had told me last week I would have said it was physically impossible. I just didn't believe it at first so I thought the best person to ask was Inga. If anybody knows about that she does. Talk about blush...

I can't have a quiet pee any more in the office corridor without blushing. I may even start wearing a fig leaf or something.

Talking about Inga, her kids are growing at an alarming rate. I could probably just handle them at the moment but I don't like the vicious they have started tearing at bits of seal meat. I'll be keeping my tail well out of their way in coming weeks. These guys don't know their own strength.

I see the silly season is with us again. Going to start from scratch again Paul? Ha-da. Ron of course proved that the easiest and safest way to get into the balloon shed is not to fall down the ladder but he's a bit too late to be the first to get his pilots licence-we all know who was .. You need to be able to move fast these days with barrells of snow and bits of gantry tumbling all over the place. I've been putting in plenty of practice along the corridor-did it in 2.8 seconds the other day. When you have seen me sprinting up and down I bet you have thought that I had flipped my lid, but all the time I have been working up to peak fitness. It may be useful in other ways once old sour puss starts feeling receptive. Can't be long now . I have actually been looking it up and it seems that their ostrich cycle is unpredictable. I don't care when it happens. I'll manage to throw aside my disgust for a few minutes for a quick roll on the floor I suppose. And if I see one camera......

STOP PRESS: Maybe it didn't work last night, but my chance will come.

Dear, oh dear. Mary's got tummy trouble. Alison's breathing is obstructed. Pat's waiting for some transplants. Primrose's got sore paws. The three pups have been buried, and their tunnel's collapsing. Who'd be the black hand gang?

A FIDS DIARY

QUOTE : I WORKED REALLY HARD TODAY.

NONDAY Started work 7 minutes after breakfast. After a ten minute lunch worked through the afternoon till 6.57. Worked like a dog till midnight even though I nearly collapsed at 10.

NESDAY Stayed in bed all day. Did not feel too well.

WRSDAY Felt better. Beat Mark at table tennis (15 times) then had half a dozen short games of chess, all of which I won (against Mark), three games of darts against Steve and Mark (together) which I won, and finally told Mark about some of the very severe climbs I have conquered.

RIDAY Mark asked me to go down the bog to pick up a pencil he had accidentally dropped. Was unsuccessful but he found that he had left it on his desk all the time. I like Mark though.

ORDAY After gash overhauled two generators and fixed the garage roof. Then after smoke I learned to dit, cracked Geophysics and V.L.F. and sorted Dorm 1 roof before takin the rest of the morning off. Had a shot at driving an I.H. and tried welding before making a few delicacies for smoke. Then I prepared a delicious seven course meal with my own homemade wine to follow. Instead of a film I showed some of my eckys, which are really very good, following that with some of my home movies, featuring myself of course. I kept the night alive with witty conversation until going to bed.

UNDAY Tracked the radio sonde first thing and took over the Met.

obs for the day. Thought I detected a slight Almond taste in my coffee. Must be a new tin. I decided to leave it.

Despite a slight stomach ache I fed the dogs in the afternoon and cleared the garage ramp- with a spade. Filled the tanks for gash before going to bed. Quieter day than usual.

ONDAY Everybody decided I could run the base myself so they all went home.

DESDAY I worked really hard today.
